

IRONS IN THE FIRE 2025

Project Information

Irons in the Fire is Fault Line Theatre's year-round reading series of new plays in development.

Every play and every playwright require something a little different, so the format and timeline for each project is malleable. Our only requirement is a public sharing of the piece at some point in the process. Each reading is also supported by a fun social event that brings the Independent Theatre Community together in a meaningful way.

At this time we can only accept one application per artist.

Submitting as:

- A Writer
- A Director

What's the title of your project?

How far along is it?

- It's just a pitch or an outline
- It's a messy early draft
- It's a few drafts in
- It's almost rehearsal ready

Please elaborate.

Where has this play been developed and is it attached to any other artists other than yourself?

Irons in the Fire is about leveling up your script, connecting with the community, and growing as a theater artist. Please be specific about where you think this script is in the development process (how it is presently succeeding vs. where it needs work), what you would like to work on, and how Fault Line Theatre is uniquely positioned to help you accomplish that.

Short synopsis of the proposed script.

Character Breakdown of the proposed script.
